CHINESE ZODIAC ANIMAL STORY

A long time ago, the Jade Emperor wanted to create a way to keep track of time. He decided to hold a race and let 12 animals take part. The first 12 animals to finish would each get a year named after them.

The rat, being small and clever, jumped onto the ox's back and rode the whole way. Just before the finish line, the rat jumped off and won the race, making the ox second. The tiger, strong and fast, came in third. The rabbit was lucky, hopping across the river and getting fourth place. The dragon, who could fly, helped people along the way but still finished fifth. The snake surprised everyone by sneaking ahead to take sixth place. The horse came in seventh, followed by the goat, monkey, and rooster. The dog, though fast, stopped to play in the water and came in tenth. The pig, who took his time, finished last.

Each animal got a year named after them, and now we use these animals to tell which year it is. The order of the animals in the race shows which animal gets to be first, second, and so on!
