TIP #16 Foster Executive Functioning Skill Development

- Read every day! Consider adding a genre or type of reading material to each day of the week (such as “fantasy Fridays” or “mysteries on Mondays”) or allow for your child to choose a way to read each day of the week such as read out loud using different character voices or read aloud to a book buddy, read with a puppet, etc.
- Follow routines! Create a consistent after-school routine. Help your child study & complete homework. Allow time to be active & exercise as well as to have some “me time” for child-directed activities. Learn more about executive functioning skills
- Be positive! Look at each day as a positive learning experience. Even when a child reports having a bad day, try to find some good in the day & the learning experience.
- Provide encouragement! Give your child the opportunity to excel in all areas of academics & life. When a child shows interest or curiosity in trying something new, discuss it & be supportive; find ways to connect with your child’s interests.
- Promote a healthy lifestyle! Be sure that your child is getting at least 8 hours of rest each night. Practice sleep hygiene. Provide a balanced diet. Find community resources to ensure that your child has a balanced diet because research shows that healthy minds learn better (<https://www.auntbertha.com>)
- Teach responsibility & accountability! Help your child understand the need to take responsibility for actions & inactions. Discuss choices & potential consequences when your child has a decision to make. Foster empathy & critical thinking.
- Be involved & show you care! Ask your child about life, experiences, feelings, emotions, dreams, goals, etc. How was the school day? How did the project presentation go? Are there any upcoming events or activities which interest your child?
- Value communication! Communicate with your child, your child’s teachers & those involved in your child’s life. Show appreciation of the different people involved in helping your child develop.
