Learning Through the Arts

RESPOND to the ten questions to reflect on what fascinates you. After you answer the questions, share your thoughts with others to find out who is fascinated in similar ways.

- 1 What is something you want to learn more about?
- 2 How could the arts help you explore new areas that spark your curiosity?
- 3 What arts-related news inspires you?
- 4 What types of dance, drama, music, media arts or visual art explorations interest you?
- 5 What new adventures, close to home or far away, increase your interest in cultural diversity?
- 6 What topics do you enjoy learning about?
- 7 What careers and hobbies fascinate you?
- 8 How do the arts help you feel empathy and motivate you to solve problems?
- 9 What inspires you to think of innovations or a new invention?
- 10 How will you turn the ideas that fascinate you into a self-expression or advocacy project that is explored through the arts?

Learning Through the Arts

CONNECT your interests with those of others to form an arts inquiry team. Collectively decide how your team will use the arts to learn more about your fascinations. You may want to start by looking at real-world examples and stretch those ideas to address other challenges and learn about new topics. Or use your imagination and find innovative ways to use drama, dance, media arts, music, and visual art to explore areas you wonder about.

CREATE a logo and arts inquiry team mission statement that will help your group focus on what brings you together. Collaboratively decide on a name for your team. Design a logo using visuals that represent the things that fascinate you. The mission statement you write should outline the focus of your work together and explain the purpose of your explorations.

SKETCH A LOGO AND CREATE NAME IDEAS.
DRAFT A PURPOSEFUL MISSION
FOR YOUR TEAM.

PRESENT your ideas to other team members to get feedback and collaboratively make decisions.
